Dear Colonel Grogan:

Thanks for your recent letter, and apologies for this length of time in answering it.

I am particularly sorry for putting you to the trouble of getting my request cleared because it all turned out to be a false alarm in the end. By the time I had the permission to proceed, it had become necessary for the people here to adopt a different course. Hence the idea I proposed in my letter of the other day can be considered as cancelled for this year anyway.

Hope everything goes well there. Best to all in the office.

Sincerely,
